IMPORTANT TO ALL.

DR. SWAYNE,
The discoverer and compounder of the far-famed Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry
and other valuable preparations, entered upon his professional career with the important advantage of a regular medical education in one of the oldest and best schools in Philadelphia, and, perhaps, in the world. He subsequently served a faithful term of practice in the Philadelphia Dispensary, and for many years attended in the Hospital. In these institutions he enjoyed the most ample opportunities of obtaining an insight into diseases in all their various forms, as well as for ascertaining the best methods of their treatment. In offering, therefore, to the people of the United States the fruits of his extensive professional experience in the medical compounds as the best results of his skill and observation, he feels that he is but proffering a soon to every family throughout the land, resting, as he does, confidently in the merits and efficatious virtue of the remedies he herewith commends. The vast amount of testimony from all parts of the world has proven "DOCTOR SWAYNE'S COMPOUND SYRUP OF WILD CHERRY" the most efficacious remedy known, and it is admitted by our most eminent physicians, and all who have witnessed its wonderful healing properties. The WILD CHERRY in all ages of the world and in all countries where it is known has been justly celebrated for its wonderful medicinal qualities, but its great power to cure some of the worst and most distressing diseases among us was never fully ascertained until the experiments of that skilfull physician, Dr. Swayne, had demonstrated its high adaptation, in combination with Pine Tree Tar, and other equally valuable vegetable ingredients, which chemically combined renders it action tenfold more certain and beneficial in curing all diseases of the throat, breast and lungs. DR. SWAYNE'S WILD CHERRY COMPOUND strikes at the root of disease by purifying the blood, restoring the liver and kidneys to healthy action, invigorating the nervous and shattered constitution. If your druggist or storekeeper does not have it, do not be put off by any other remedy that may be offered, but send to us direct, and we will forward a half dozen to any address, freight paid, on receipt of the price, $7.50 for half a dozen. Address letters to DR. SWAYNE & SON, 330 North Sixth street, Philadelphia. No charge will be made for advice.

Ask Your Druggist for Them.

Females and all who value health should never be without DR. SWAYNE'S TAR AND SARSAPARILLA PILLS, as they purify the blood, remove all obstructions, cleanse the skin of all pimples and blotches, and bring the rich color of health to the pale cheek. Female irregularities are restored to a healthy condition. They are a certain cure for Sick and Nervous Headache. As a Dinner Pill, nothing can exceed them; take one, two, or three, as may be found necessary; unlike others, they neither gripe, produce nausea, or any other unpleasant sensation, while they are as powerful as it is possible for a medicine to be and be harmless. These Pills cleanse out the disordered humors, enrich and purify the blood, remove all unhealthy bilious secretions of the stomach and bowels, causing a perfectly healthy state of the liver, and are undoubtedly the best cathartic and antibilious medicine yet discovered; and we are determined that the sick shall have them at a price within the means of the poorest (25 cents a box of 30 Pills.) If your druggist or storekeeper has not got them, do not be put off by any others that may be offered in their place, but send to us direct, and we will forward by mail, on receipt of the price, 25 cents a box or five boxes $1.

Itching Piles
is generally preceded by a moisture, like perspiration, distressing itching, as though pin worms were crawling in or about the rectum, particularly at night when undressing, or in bed after getting warm. It appears in summer as well as winter, oftentimes shows itself around the private parts, and is not confined to males only, but is quite as frequent that females are sorely afflicted, particularly in times of pregnancy, extending into the vagina, proving distressing almost beyond endurance. In confirmed cases of long standing, pronounced incurable, have been permanently cured by simply applying

Poetical.

A MUSICAL GLUTTON.

He waited for his oyster stew,
And drummed upon his plate
A solo with his plated fork,
And thus did meditate:

"I think one plate will not suffice;
I think I would not rue it
If I should take another dish:
I'll do it, yes, I'll duet."

He took his stew, he took his two,
And then he heaves a sigh, O,
And murmured in the waiter's ear,
"Another dish I'll trio."

Another, and another still,
In fact, when he had ceased,
This human oyster depot had
A quartet at the least.

SONG OF THE TURTLE AND FLAMINGO.

BY JAMES T. FIELDS.

A lively young turtle lived down by the banks
Of a dark-rolling stream called the Jingo,
And one summer day as he went out to play,
Fell in love with a charming flamingo—
An enormously genteel flamingo!
An extensively crimson flamingo!
A beautiful, bu ic ing flamingo!

Spake the turtle in tones like a delicate wheeze:
"To the water I've oft seen you in go,
And your form has impressed itself deep on my shell,
You perfectly modeled flamingo!
You uncommonly brilliant flamingo!
You tremendously 'Alone' flamingo!
You la-ex-pres-si-ble flamingo!"

"To be sure I'm a turtle, and you are a belle,
And my language is not your fine lingo;
But smile on me, tail one, and let my bright flame,
You miraculous, wondrous flamingo!
You blazingly beauteous flamingo!
You turtle-absorbing flamingo!
You inflammably gorgeous flamingo!"

Then the proud bird blushed redder than ever before
And that was quite un-nec-es-sa-ry,
And she stood on one leg and looked out of one eye,
The position of things for to vary—
This aquatical, nasing flamingo!
This dreary, uncertain flamingo!
This embarrassing, harassing flamingo!

Then she cried to the quadruped, greatly amused:
"Why your passion toward me do you hurtle?
I'm an ornithological wonder of grace,
And you're an illegical turtle—
A waddling, lumpish turtle!
A low-minded, grass-eating turtle!
A highly improbable turtle!

Then the turtle sneaked off with his nose to the ground,
And never more looked at the lasses;
And falling asleep while indulging his grief,
Was gobbled up whole by Agassiz—
The peripatetic Agassiz—
The turtle-dissecting Agassiz!
The illustrious, industrious Agassiz!

Go with me to Cambridge some cool pleasant day,
And the skeleton-lover I'll show you:
He's in a hard case but he'll look in your face,
Pretending (the rogue!) he don't know you!
Oh, the deeply deceptive young turtle!
The double-faced, glassy-cased turtle!
The GREEN, but a very MOCK turtle!

PRINCE AND JEWELER.

BY M. PASQUIER.

A jeweler of Paris one day saw a splendid equipage drive up to his door, and a tall, important-looking gentleman alighted from it. He wanted a lady's set of diamond ornaments, a complete wedding parure. The price was fixed at two hundred thousand francs. Several designs were shown to him. He made choice of one, said he could grant but little time for executing the order, and insisted on leaving with the jeweler a deposit of four thousand francs in billets de banque. He also selected a ring, worth a hundred and twenty francs, and ordered it to be sent home next day; and five days after, the whole set of diamonds was to be completed. Accordingly, on the following day, a confidential messenger from the jeweler's repaired to the Hotel D——, in the Rue de la Paix, and inquired for Prince Gargarin. He was shown into an apartment on the first story. Five or six lackeys were in the antechamber. The Prince took the ring, paid for it, and gave a present of ten francs to the messenger, who joyfully returned home, and congratulated his master on having so wealthy and liberal a customer.

The jeweler, with the utmost punctuality, carried home the diamonds on the day appointed. The Prince was in his study, sitting before his cylindrical secretaire, which was open. The jeweler handed the casket to him, and his highness minutely inspected the jewels; suddenly one of the valets entered the room, and announced "Prince Dolgorouki."

"Ah! my noble brother-in-law!" exclaimed his highness. "I do not wish him to see the present which I destine for his sister. Request him to stay in the drawing-room, and I will come to him immediately." He touched the table, the cylinder moved and the secretaire closed. The diamonds were in it: but on the table there lay an open box filled with leather bags, and numerous rouleaux of louis were huddled together in confusion. The jeweler had observed all this treasure on his first arrival; but his attention was particularly attracted by a large Russia leather portfolio, well lined with billets de banque, the edges of which were visible.

His highness left the room, saying he would return very shortly. The jeweler begged he would not hurry himself. About twenty minutes elapsed, and a sort of vague apprehension began to assail the jeweler. At length the door opened. Oh, here is his highness, thought he. But no, it was the master of the hotel, who stepping up to the jeweler, said:

"Are you waiting for anybody?"

"I am waiting for the return of Prince Gargarin, to whom I have just sold a set of diamonds for two hundred thousand francs. Are you his secretary?"

"I am his dupe, and so I presume you are."

"What do you mean?—his dupe? Impossible! The jewels are shut up in the secretaire. Besides, look at all this money."

He seized one of the leather bags, and opening it, discovered, to his horror, that it was filled with nails; the rouleaux contained nothing, and the portfolio, scraps of waste paper. However, the jeweler consoled himself—the diamonds were still safe. A locksmith was sent for; the secretaire was opened and oh, horror! it was empty. It stood on one side of the room, against a wall in which a hole had been made, and, there being a corresponding hole in the back of the secretaire, the jewels had, with perfect ease, been conveyed into the adjoining apartment.

The despair of the unfortunate jeweler may be easily imagined. The master of the hotel, too, who had let his apartments to the pretended Prince Gargarin, had been extensively swindled. The servants all belonged to the hotel, with the exception of the valet de chambre, who was the companion and confederate of the Prince.

It was ascertained that they had decamped in a coach from the door of the hotel. Every exerison was made to trace them out, but several years elapsed before they were discovered.

The jeweler, who was nearly ruined by this robbery, removed to another quarter of Paris, and established himself under a new name. One day a messenger called on him from M. T——, a gentleman holding an official situation, who was very ill, and wished to purchase some rings. The poor jeweler had naturally become suspicious ever since his fatal adventure with Gargarin; and instead of sending his shopman, he took the rings himself. He was shown into a bedchamber which was partially lighted; owing to the situation of the windows, the room was all in shade, except where the bed stood. What was the surprise of the jeweler when he discovered, in the invalid M. T——, the swindler who had some years previously defrauded him in the assumed character of the Russian Prince Gargarin! For a few moments he was struck dumb with amazement. However, he recovered himself, and deeming it prudent not to betray the discovery he had made, he displayed his rings; several were selected, and their price amounted to about six thousand francs.

"It is a large sum of money for a poor, ruined man," said M. T——. "I have not ready cash enough to settle the whole amount and I shall feel obliged if you will take in payment this curious old snuff-box, which is of great value."

He asked for his dressing-case, and opening it, took out an octagon-shaped snuff-box, ornamented with ten miniatures by Clinchsteil, set in gold and rubies. It was perfectly unique and of inestimable value. The snuff-box which M. T——presented to him was one which had been stolen from him a few days before the robbery of his diamonds. The box was too remarkable to admit of the possibility of mistake. Besides, it had a secret spring, by means of which all the miniatures could be taken out of their settings; and on the reverses were painted similar subjects, but treated in the style of indelicacy peculiar to the age of Louis XV. This circumstance was important in proof of his claim to the possession of the box. When M. T—— asked him to set a value on it he said without hesitation:

"I consider it worth more than fifty thousand francs."

"Fifty thousand francs!" exclaemed M. T——; "I thought it valuable, but this far exceeds my estimation of it."

"Sir" resumed the jeweler. "I will not retract what I have said. I am an expert dealer, and to me it may possibly be worth far more than the sum I have fixed. I will make this proposition to you; you shall take the rings you have selected, and you shall put the box under an envelope stating it to be my property; and, if it does not bring more than fifty thousand francs, you shall have my rings for nothing."

M. T——was completely blinded by this deep-laid scheme. He was a good connoisseur of objects of virtu, and he was not a little gratified to find his box so much overvalued, and to obtain the rings without opening his purse. The most exaggerated valuation of the snuff-box would scarcely have exceeded seven or eight thousand francs. He sent for two of his neighbors, one of whom was a notary, and the matter was arranged conformably with the jeweler's proposition. This being done, the invalid said:

"Who will fix the price of the box?"

"You, sir," coolly replied the jeweler.

"Me? You are jesting!"

"I assure you, sir, I am quite serious. I would willingly lay a good wager that you will value the box at five hundred thousand francs."

M. T——directed at the two witnesses a look which seemed to say—the man is mad; but the jeweler added:

"You will value it at that price, I am certain you will. But first of all, I have to acquaint you with a circumstance connected with this box, which will enable you to perceive its real value."

M. T——, full of curiosity and anxiety, consented to hear the jeweler's communication in private. The two neighbors, taking the box with them, adjourned to the drawing room; and M. T——and the jeweler being left alone, the latter said:

"Sir, it is now about sixteen years ago since that snuff-box was stolen from me; and a short time after, you robbed me of fifty thousand crowns' worth of diamonds, under the assumed name of Prince Gargarin. I have now discovered you. My evidence relative to the robbery is on record. You have declared the snuff-box to be yours, and I can prove having purchased it at a public sale. I know a secret which will place the truth of my assertion beyond a doubt. Now, sir, tell me whether you are inclined to defend yourself in the criminal suit which I intend forthwith to institute against you."

Every word uttered by the jeweler fell like a thunderbolt on the ears of M. T——. Overwhelmed with the consciousness of his guilt, his imagination pictured all the horrors of imprisonment, trial, sentence, and the scaffold. He reflected, and the jeweler said:

"Sir, I give you five minutes to form your determination."

At the expiration of that interval, M. T——, in a faltering voice, directed the jeweler to open a drawer, in which he would find billets de banques for three hundred thousand francs, payable at his banker's that day. This being done, the jeweler called in the witnesses.

"Gentlemen," said he, "I have at length convinced M. T——of the real value of the snuff-box. You see the price at which he has purchased it back from me."

"I have given five hundred thousand francs," said M. T——.

"Here is your box," said the jeweler, restoring it, "and I will let you have the rings into the bargain.

The notary, who was no less amazed than the other witness, said:

"There is some mystery in all this."

"Probably there is," replied the jeweler; "M. T—— may explain it if he pleases; for my part I promise him eternal secrecy."

With these words he took his departure, leaving the witnesses bewildered in a maze of conjectures. M. T——, though immensely rich, (he was said to possess upward of three millions,) never recovered from the mortification attendant on this unexpected discovery. The jeweler faithfully adhered to his promise of secrecy; but the subtle machinery of the police unraveled the mystery.

Oriental Marriages.

In America, love precedes and prepares the way for marriage—at least this is our theory of courtship. In the East, marriage precedes and prepares for love—at least this is the Oriental theory of the wedded state. It quite accords, therefore, with the Eastern ideas of the marriage relation that women enter into it at an age which to us seems very unfit; and this practice of early marriages is also favored by the fact that women reach their maturity at a much earlier age than with us. They are at the height of their bloom and beauty at fifteen or sixteen. They are often married at thirteen or fourteen, and sometimes as early as eight or nine; and Dr. Van Lennep mentions one instance of a wedding which he attended in which the bride was so young that she was carried about in the arms of her relatives. Naturally courtship is done by proxy, and the young men are cheated out of what the American regards as one of the most sacred, inalienable rights. The duty of looking up for the young man a suitable wife, which even in our own society the mothers, aunts, or sisters often assume, is in the East, by universal consent, devolved upon them.

Womanly nature is essentially the same the world over, and we may safely assume that they are nothing loth to perform the duty which social custom intrusts to them. For this purpose they sally forth in a body on their tour of inspection, call at any house which affords reasonable hope of containing a suitable inmate, are invariably greeted with the utmost courtesy, and ushered at once into the reception room; the young lady is summoned, and presently enters bearing sweetmeats and water; she is arrayed in all the finery and jewels which belong to her dowry; nor is it considered a breach of social propriety to inquire with particularity respecting her marriage portion. This frankness prevents some of the awkward discoveries which sometimes occur with us after marriage to mar the happiness of the honey-moon. If the preliminary negotiations are satisfactory, a bargain is made between the parents, in which the amount paid by the husband, or on his behalf, either to the bride or to her parents, is definitely agreed upon. This, which under the Mosaic law was fixed at a uniform rate—at fifty shekels or twenty-five dollars—varies with the modern Jews with the condition of the bride's family, while among some of the Circassian tribes and the Tartars, as among the African savages, the daughter, when she reaches a marriageable age, is sold to the highest bidder. The parties are always considered as affianced as soon as the marriage contract has been agreed to, but the nuptial ceremony is sometimes deferred for a considerable period, during which time the bride and groom are not permitted to see each other; their sole intercourse with each other is through the intervention of a "friend of the bridegroom." The wedding dress is even more a matter of importance with the Eastern bride than with us. The preparation of her toilet in the presence of female friends, often occupies a larger part of two days. The wedding veil, the bridal crown, the dodos, or cap, are some of the emblems dodned for the bridal ceremony. The costumes are often rich and gorgeous beyond expression. Fashion, as interpreted by an Oriental milliner, quoted by Dr. Van Lennep, prescribes the characteristics of an ideal wedding dress. It should measure six yards from the shoulders to the end of the train; the long sleeves should sweep the floor; the material is silk; it is elaborately embroidered by a party of professional embroiderers under the direction of a chief. The sum paid for superintending the needle work on a single robe referred to by Dr. Van Lennep was five hundred dollars, while the charge for the work done by the subordinates was two thousand five hundred dollars, and the entire cost of the dress was ten thousand; nor must it be forgotten that labor in that country is very much less expensive than in this.

The marriage festivities last often for a week, and in many sections of the East the old practices are still maintained. The bridegroom with a procession, starts with music and torches, by night, for the house of the bride, where, after a show of resistance, and sometimes quite a struggle, she is taken possession of and borne away to her future home. This resistance by the coy maiden to the approach of her husband is curiously illustrative of the marriage customs of many countries, and in various forms—from that of African society, in which the bride room chases the fleeing bird, captures and carries her away bodily, to that of the Nestorians, where the bride remains in the corner of the church until the time comes for the joining of hands, when she is dragged half across the building by main strength toward her intended husband, who is allowed to seize her hand only after a vehement struggle, during which the officiating clergyman stands passively by.—Harper's Magazine for October.

Roman Magnificence.

If anything was wanted to give us an idea of Roman magnificence, we would turn our eyes from public monuments, demoralized games and grand processions, we would forget the statues in brass and marble, which outnumbered the living inhabitants, so numerous that one hundred thousand have been recovered and still embellish Italy and would descend into the lower sphere of material life—those things which attest luxury and taste—to ornaments, dresses, sumptuous living, and rich furniture.

The art of using metals and cutting precious stones surpassed anything known at the present day.

CHARLES R. PAXTON.

No man in this community ever had a better reputation for honesty and probity than Mr. Paxton. He was generally supposed to be above little meannesses. True, he never did anything for this town or community, except to make money out of it, but still he was a reputable citizen. Recently he removed himself and family to Virginia, just previous to having delivered the First National Bank to a swindler, innocently of course, who was afterwards imprisoned in our county jail, but at our recent election he claimed under oath, to still be a resident of Bloomsburg. In fact he practically divorced himself from his wife and family. His vote was admitted by a Democratic Board, and Mr. Buckalew made an eloquent appeal in his behalf, which convinced them. The vote was in violation of the Constitution, and the Act of Assembly passed in 1874. He is liable to the penalties imposed by this Act but of course no one will prosecute such a respectable person as our Virginia-Pennsylvania citizen.

What is the object? We rather think Mr. Paxton has defied the law for the purpose of retaining his presidency of the First National Bank of this place. A reference to the revised statutes may instruct on this point.

THE END.

We, and, we presume, our readers, are heartily glad that election day has come and gone and that matters can settle back into their accustomed channels, free from the excitement and worry of politics. The campaign just ended has never been equalled in this country for malicious and unscrupulous lying, slander, vituperation, and abuse of candidates. It is disgraceful to the country that, in this age of civilization and in the Centennial year of the Republic, our political affairs should be managed in such a manner. Nothing is gained by it—not one vote is made or lost by the scandalous abuse of good men which has characterized the campaign. It is to be hoped that both men and journals may take to heart this lesson and that the world may not have to witness such another season of calumny and mendacity.

The Bloomsburg Columbian, after publishing the evidence of "Judge" Slattery in the Mollie Maguire trial at Mauch Chunk last week asks, "in the face of these facts how can any decent Republican longer act with a party that deliberately buys up a band of cut-throats?" To turn this thing over and look at the other side of it—how, in the face of these facts, can any decent Democrat longer act with a party to which these purchasable cut-throats belong from conviction (or instruction, as the case may be) and of which that party is so largely composed?"—Pittston Gazette.

The "convictions" of the "cut-throats" mentioned do not seem to have been very strong nor does it appear that they ever were Democrats except in name, as they undoubtedly assisted in the election of Hartranft. The statement that the party is "largely composed" of such fellows is, of course, too transparently false to need comment.

The Williamsport Gazette and Bulletin is a humorous paper but nothing that we have seen in its columns strikes us as more amusing than its criticism on the Philadelphia Times. Hear it! "The Times is falling into disfavor with the public. It had a mushroom growth, and is likely to wither under the blaze of public sentiment." The milk in that cocoanut is very readily found. The Times has exposed too many Republican rogues, defeated too many of them for office and been too unsparing in its denunciations of public corruption to merit the approbation of a thick and thin paper like the Gazette. It doesn't "wither" worth a cent, and its growth seems to be more oak-like than "mushroom."

THE STATE.

From the very meagre returns received it is impossible to give the result in Pennsylvania. The city of Philadelphia gave 15,427 Republican majority, but William H. Wright, Democrat, was elected Sheriff by 6,233 majority over W. Elwood Rowan, Pilgrim-Republican. The Republican majority will probably reach 9,000. The Democrats, outside of Philadelphia, have a majority of some 6,000, but the majority in Philadelphia was too heavy to overcome.

The Columbia County Republican, October 9th, 1868, quoted as "Our Principles," the following:

"This is a Republic where the voice of the people is the law of the land. I beg that their voice may be heard."—Ulysses S. Grant.

This patriotic wish has now been gratified. How do you like it?

Something has really been done in the Indian country and happily, without loss of troops. General Miles has effected the capture of some four hundred lodges of savages belonging to the Cheyenne Agency. Five of the principal chiefs were received as hostages and sent to the agency. The Indians captured are about five hundred in number.

The fight is fought and Victory perches on the banners of the Democracy. The returns are as yet incomplete but enough have been received to prove beyond a doubt that Samuel J. Tilden has been elected President. The following are the latest reports:

New York City complete, gives a Democratic majority of 53,550; Brooklyn, complete 17,250; total majority in both cities 70,800. In South Carolina a majority is claimed for Tilden of 4000; in Louisiana 6000; in Kentucky 60,000; Connecticut 7,000; Maryland 12000 to 15000; Indiana 10,000; Georgia, 50,000; Florida, 3,000; Tennessee 50,000; Virginia, 25,000 to 30,000; Alabama 25,000; Delaware 3,000; Mississippi 30,000.

In Wisconsin there are large Democratic gains and it is probable that Tilden has carried the State, Texas and North Carolina have undoubtedly gone Democratic, as has also West Virginia.

Large gains are reported for the Democrats in Michigan and in Massachusetts.

Ohio is claimed by the Republicans by 8,000 majority; in 1872 Grant had over 41,000. A Republican majority of 17,000 is claimed in Maine but Blaine may have sent the dispatch.

Rhode Island gives 5000 Republican majority and Vermont 12,677 a Democratic gain of 3,849. Iowa is claimed by 30,000 majority for the Republicans.

These figures are mainly estimated and will probably undergo some changes but not enough to affect the general result.

30,000 MINERS OUT OF WORK.

A special dispatch from Bethlehem to the New York Herald says:

The coal mining and transportation companies of the Schuylkill, Lehigh, Wyoming and Lackawanna regions have for a long time been planning a suspension of production at their collieries, but no positive arrangements for a stoppage have been decided upon until just now. Many of the smaller producers have been shutting down ever since the dissolution of the coal combination but the Delaware and Hudson Coal Company one of the heaviest coal and carrying corporations in the Lackawanna and Wyoming or northern coal and carrying corporations in the Lackawanna and Wyoming or northern coal fields, has been the first one of the great companies to initiate a suspension movment. Work has been stopped at all the mines of the company, the numerous breakers are now silent, and between 13,000 and 15,000 workingmen, colliers and their assistants are thrown out of employment. It is understood the suspension will continue for an indefinite period. Several of the other prominent operating companies have also followed the same policy. The Philadelphia and Reading Company has made a partial cessation of operations. By the suspension between 25,000 and 30,000 men employed in the mines of the different companies are either entirely or partially unemployed. A meeting of managers of nearly all the coal and transportation companies has been held, and from what has been gleaned of their action it is believed a general suspension of production will soon occur, the stoppage being carried out in all the districts with perhaps the exception of the Lehigh region. There is over 1,500,000 tons of authracite fuel now "stacked" at the seaboard depots, and it is said this is sufficient to meet all ordinary demands for at least three months, and the shut-down will probably continue for that length of time. The operators say that there is no profit in coal mining, and they are therefore compelled to stop production to prevent possible bankruptcy. On the other hand the colliers say it is a sharp dodge to run up prices.

ANOTHER LIBEL SUIT.

The path trodden by the independent and honest newspaper of the period is not destitute of thorns and the Philadelphia Times appears to have wandered into an unusually briery portion of the walk. First came one Nat. McKay, contractor, breathing forth vengeance and wrath and demanded redress for wrongs inflicted through the columns of the Times aforesaid. The jury didn't agree with him and he will have to try it again. Next came his Honor Mayor Stokley, of Philadelphia, whose bosom was lacerated, as he thought by the minions of the press. He, however, is apparently too mad to try the case, at least McClure has not been mulcted as yet. And last of all comes—McMullen—ex-Alderman and Councillor McMullen—"Billy" McMullen, whose pure reputation he alleges has been torn into shoe strings by the remorseless Times. It would seem as if there was a large amount of "reputation" open to injury, lying around loose in Philadelphia. We hope Col. McClure's purse will hold out as long as his pluck, although we have serious doubts whether there will be many large fortunes made out of libel suits against his paper.

The man who aids, assists or abets in the persecution of such a paper as the Times, with a view to its suppression, should be held a public enemy and treated accordingly. The only live newspaper Philadelphia has ever had is a luxury not readily to be cast aside. Let us have peace.

SCRIBNER FOR NOVEMBER.—Scribner for November begins the thirteenth volume of that magazine and opens with a fully illustrated article on Hartford, by Mr. Charles H. Clark, of the Hartford Courant, under the title of "The Charter Oak City." Charles Barnard's articles on Co-operation in Great Britain are begun—with a paper on "A Scottish Loaf Factory." Mrs. Herrick's very carefully illustrated microscopic papers are also here begun—the first entitled "The Beginnings of Life." Mr. Clarence Cook continues his talks about furniture; the illustrations are of fire-places, settees, chairs, &c. Mr. C. F. Thwing gives us the result of his investigations in regard to the expenses of an education at the principal colleges—including cost of board, etc. Donald G. Mitchell (Ik Marvel) writes about some of the features of the great Exhibition. There is an illustrated paper on Rome; a short story by James T. McKay a writer well known to the readers of this magazine; a short story by Mrs. Burnett. There are poems by Thomas Bailey Aldrich, George Parsons Lathrop, and others. In the departments at the end of the magazine, such various subjects are discussed as Country Homes, Americus Art, Politics, the Jews, the proper treatment of infants, "Daniel Deronda," a new photographic process, etc. "Brie-a-Brac" contains among other things, the ballad of the Fair Iolinda, by Hugh Howard; and The Old Hostler's Experience, by Irwin Russell.

The most stupendous hoax of the age, except perhaps the New York Herald's report of the escape of wild beasts from Central Park, was published in the last number of the Philadelphia Sunday Item. It was an elaborate and admirably written account of the robbery of goods from the Main Centennial Building, valued at over $50,000,000, and the capture of one of the thieves &c. Of course the whole affair was mythical and only showed what might have occurred.

Cardinal Antonelli, the most influential and powerful of the Pope's advisers and the controller of the Papal policy, died in Rome on Monday, aged seventy years. NOTICE TO POSTMASTERS.—Those postmasters who hereafter return subscribers' papers to this office simply marked "refused," and uncaccompanied by a letter, as required by law, will be charged with the papers from the date of such illegal notification until notice is given in a proper way. We have reached the conclusion that our time is about as valuable as that of postmasters generally, and we do not propose after this to spend half a morning hunting up a name because a postmaster is too lazy to fill out a blank.

We give the Presidental vote of Columbia county as accurately as possible from the figures at our command.

The avenues leading to an early grave have often been opened by a cough or cold. Thousands have been cured and saved by Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

The Pennsylvania iron works, Danville, Pa., have lighted up sixteen puddling furnaces and started the rail mill with a prospect of running all winter.

This is the season for raffles for turkeys, geese, chickens, &c., but as this community is a moral one we have none to chronicle in this neighborhood.

Mrs. Eve Hoffman of Sunbury, died in a buggy, last week, while on her way to attend the marriage of her son. The cause of her death was asthma.

A boy named Henry Dalton was run over by a car at Gorrell & Co's., colliery, at Centralia, one day last week, and had his arm taken off above the wrist.

The eleven-years-old son of A. T. Ikeler of Benton, has killed two hundred squirrels this season. If that boy keeps on he'll make a hunter, so he will.

Now, then, has every lady got her seal skin? (Joyful cries of "we have," "of course we have," &c.) Well then put them right away, for they have gone out of fashion entirely. Such is life.

At the Democratic meeting at Pine Summit Mr. R. W. Lyons, a Republican, kindly offered the use of his room for the meeting for which a vote of thanks was tendered him by the audience.

We would remark, incidentally, as a matter of moment for our young lady readers, that the glide is to be the fashionable waltz this winter. Paste this notice on your looking glasses, ladies.

LOST.—Between Bloomsburg and Benton, on Saturday last, an oil cloth satchel containing wearing apparel. The finder will be rewarded by leaving it at the residence of William Hulme, near Benton, or at this office.

Mrs. McCron, whose sorrowful accident we noticed last week, died on Friday night at ten o'clock. The funeral took place on Sunday and the body was interred in Rosemont Cemetery. Mrs. McCron was about eighty years of age.

The season fatal to hogs is fairly inaugrated and sausage, pork, and scrapple are becoming familiar adjuncts to the breakfast table. Buckwheat cakes of course have made their appearance and the community is now ready for cold weather.

The Northumberland Press says that J. Lesher, son of Daniel Lesher, of Point township, that county, husked 120 bushels of corn, and tied up the fodder, in ten and a half hours. What have Columbia county farmer's boys to say to that?

The hens in this section of the country are not behaving themselves well; they will not lay and are loafing about doing nothing, in the face of advancing rates for eggs. It's a foul proceeding and disgraceful to the fowls. As an old lady once remarked "when eggs get cheap then the pesky things will begin to lay."

The Bloomsburg Tilden Club visited Catawissa on last Wednesday evening, accompanied by the Bloomsburg Band. Our Associate Judge F. L. Shuman was serenaded, and a like compliment was paid to Judge Hughes. No stones were thrown at the visitors.

DAVID J. WALLER.

He is a very estimable gentleman, and the returns show that he received a very handsome complimentary vote at home. But he did not convince the people that he was a Democrat, nor did they believe specially in Tom Scott, nor the subsidy to the Southern Pacific R. R.

There is on exhibition at Hendershott's drug store a life-size crayon portrait of the late Gen. W. H. Ent, which is really admirable. The picture is the work of H. W. Flickinger of Philadelphia and is very creditable to him as an artist and the more so as the only copy he had was a small photograph. Mr. Flickinger had never seen Gen. Ent.

The last Legislature passed a law giving the Commissioners of each county in the Commonwealth the power to fix the compensation for light, rent and fuel, for election purposes, in each and every township, borough, ward and election district in the state. Heretofore the compensation for the purpose above mentioned differed to a great extent, and the Commissioners were required to pay whatever sum the election officers agreed upon.

On Pine Creek, the other day, a lad of twelve years, by the name of Clark Jackson, while out gunning for birds, with his dog, the latter treed a catamount of large size. The lad at once planted a charge of bird-shot in the animal, which had the effect to bring him quickly to the ground. The catamount attacked the dog, while the boy ran to the aid of the dog. In the fight his gun was broken, but he killed the catamount. He made his appearance at home with the gun-barrel and the dead catamount. The dog looked as if he had just got through a hard winter. He told his folks that he cared little for the fight, he only regretted the loss of his gun.—Gazette & Bulletin.

An exchange sagely remarks: We observe that the greediest man after a newspaper is the one who is too mean to subscribe. He is always in waiting for the latest paper, and it is not two minutes on the owner's premises till the non-subscriber pounces upon it and never lets up till the last line is read, and then perhaps casts it aside with the remark that he could make a better paper himself." He can be called the "newspaper fiend" and there are others like unto him. One of these is the chap who steals newspapers from door steps, front yards and other eligible locations, and yet another is the fellow who subscribes for a paper and refuses to pay for it. All such will surely reap their reward—and it won't be an icy one.

James D. Brewer, of Muncy, caught a salmon weighing six pounds, with a hook and line, in the river immediately below Muncy dam, on Thursday of last week.

An attempt was made to burn the town of Sugar Notch, near Wilkesbarre, on Friday night. About a dozen dwellings and stores were fired. Joseph Powonsky has been arrested on suspicion.

CENTENNIAL AWARD.—Mr. Alex. M. Lesley of New York, whose Gothic Furnace (advertised in our columns) and Zero Refrigerator, have become so popular, received for the latter the highest award.

According to the report of the appraisers the total assets of the broken Pottsville bank of the Miners' trust company are only worth $263,426, 40. This is a slim provision for the payment of depositors whose claims amount to $1,250,000.

The latest novelty is a sheet-iron "cooking chimney," made to fit an ordinary oil lamp, and so confining the heat, that one can warm the baby's medicine or get up a plain stew in quick time by placing a cup or diminutive saucepan on the top.

Mr. Baltzer Leacock gave a game supper at his saloon on Thursday night of last week, on which occasion some dozen gentlemen did full justice to the delicious viands. The birds, quail, snipe and woodcock were delightfully cooked and in capital condition. On Thursday night there was a "coon" lunch at the saloon.

Here is an item of interest to landlords in this and other counties:

A boarding-house keeper in Mercer county, this State, sued a boarder, and the landlord not having copies of the late Hotel Act posted up in his bedrooms, the boarder was released from paying his bill.

The COLUMBIAN don't fly the Collins flag. What's the matter with "Charley?" Nice "organ," ain't it?—Hazleton Sentinel.

Near sighted aren't you, Jerry? Look again. By the way, speaking of "organs" what kind of a political tune does your paper play?

What a year for apples this is! They are selling in this State for from three to eight cents for distrilleries, ten to fifteen cents for cider, and from twenty five cents to one dollar for the choicest picked lots. Healthy fruit, too, the doctors say, therefore build up your constitutions while you can do so cheaply.

A destructive insect known as the "carpet bug" has made its appearance, to the great disgust and dismay of house-keepers. It is entirely different in appearance and habits from the well known "carpet moth." It conceals itself beneath the borders of carpets nailed to the floor, and eats away those portions. Occasionally it locates itself in the cracks of the floor, following which it cuts across entire breadths of carpets, leaving a line which seems to have been cut by the scissors. It destroys new as well as old carpets which, however, are not its only food, as it infests wearing apparel hanging in closets or laid away in drawers. Unlike moths, it is said to prey upon cotton fabrics. In some parts of New York state it has created serious alarm. It is advisable for our lady readers to wage instant and active warfare against the pest should it make its appearance here.

Farmers should be on their guard. A new dodge of swindling has been put in operation. Several strange men drive through an agricultural district. They stop at all the farm houses and make a contract to take all the butter the farm can furnish at fifty cents per pound. Further, it will be gathered up by fast special teams and the cash paid for it at the door. The pretense is that during the fall and winter, the large cities will be overcrowded and that butter will be scarce. In this way all the farmers in a district are contracted with, and arrangements are made to come for their butter on certain days and at certain points; the contract to go into effect in two weeks. A few days after the departure of the men a drove of cows comes along. They are fine looking milk cows. The farmers having a good thing in view think they might use a few more cows. They try to buy them and the drover doesn't seem to be anxious to sell. Finally, however, he is induced to sell two or three to each farmer at prices considerably higher than the real market value. He then departs, meets his partners, who put up the butter job, and they divide their profits. That is the last the farmer hears of it.

DEMOCRATIC MEETINGS.

The following meetings have been held since our last issue.

Thursday, Yeager's Hotel, Slabtown, addressed by R. R. Little and John M. Clark; Cole's Creek, E. E. Orvis; Benton, a joint discussion between C. G. Jackson, Republican and C. B. Brockway, Democrat.

Friday, Madison, speeches by M. W. Nuss and T. J. Vanderslice, Catawissa, J. O. Parker of Williamsport and C. B. Brockway.

Saturday, Pole raising at Rohrsburg, an address was delivered by R. R. Little, Jackson, T. J. Vanderslice, R. R. Little and W. J. Buckalew; Opera House, Bloomsburg, speeches by Col. Freeze, C. G. Barkley and E. E. Orvis; Numedia, C. B. Brockway, B. F. Zarr and E. E. Orvis; Centralia, C. B. Brockway and B. F. Zarr.

The final speech of the campaign was made in the Opera House on Monday night by G. W. Van Fossen Esq. of Danville. The speech was a good one and listened to with earnest attention.

Mr. Van Fossen is a fluent and animated speaker and his address was received with as much genuine pleasure by the audience as any speech of the campaign. The thanks of the people of Bloomsburg are due to Mr. Van Fossen.

We publish the following fashion notes thinking they may prove of interest to our lady readers:

A Paris fashion letter states that the ladies are wearing tiny bows of ribbons for ear-rings now. The effect is said to be very pleasing.

The October number of the Milliner and Dressmaker, a fashion journal published in London and Paris, contains cuts of all the latest styles of dresses, and the ladies will be interested to know that none of them, not excepting evening or wedding dresses, are cut low in the neck. All are represented as closing up around the throat in a most Puritanical manner, in some instances even being supplemented with Elizabethan ruffs.

Evening gloves are worn very long, requiring often ten and twelve buttons and never less than six.

A greenish cream color will take the lead among new shades.

"Dog-collar" bands of feathers clasped with the head of the bird, or tied with ribbons are introduced.

Necklaces of filagree silver will be popular to wear with dark dresses.

A report has been current for some time that Attorney General Lear had decided that watches are wearing apparel and not taxable. The Attorney General denies that he ever made any such decision or that the question ever came before him. In answer to a letter on the subject from the Lancaster county Commissioners he says:

"If they (the watches) are wearing apparel it does not follow that they are not taxable. Whatever the constitution does not forbid, the legislature may do, and a man's clothes may be taxed as well as his horse, his carriage, or his cow. That his watch is a proper subject of taxation I have no doubt. I have never heard it questioned, and have never given an opinion on the subject."

Croup.

From Mr. James Grimes, of Mt. Pleasant, Columbia county, Pa.

"About three years ago, our daughter now about twelve years of age, was severely afflicted with Croup. A general irritation of the lungs followed, producing a hectic cough which became almost constant. Swelling of the temples and other indications of Consumption, were also apparent and her life was despaired of by her physician. At this critical moment we were induced to give Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry a trial: and after she had taken one bottle we found her so much relieved that we discontinued its use. Since that time we have used the Balsam in our family in cases of Coughs and Colds and believe it to be a superior remedy for all diseases of the lungs."

50 cents and $1 a bottle. Sold by all druggists.

Agricultural.

Why Seeds Fail.

In the first place we will examine the cause of failure. If small seeds are placed too deep, they either rot in the damp cold earth, for the warmth necessary to their germination, perish before the shoots can reach the sun and air; so that which was designed for their support and nourishment proves their grave.

If the soil is a stiff clay, it is often too cold at the time the seeds are planted to effect their germination; for it must be understood that warmth and moisture are necessary to the germination of seed. Neither of these will do alone. Seeds may be kept in a warm, dry room, in dry sand or earth, and they will not grow. They may be placed in damp earth, and kept in a low temperature, and they will most likely rot, though some seeds will remain dormant a long time under these circumstances. But place them in moist earth in a warm room, and they will commence growth at once. Another difficulty with heavy soil is that it becomes hard on the surface, and this prevents the young plants from "coming up;" or if, during showery weather, they happen to get above the surface, they become locked in and make but little advancement unless the cultivator is careful to keep the crust well broken; and in doing this the young plants are often destroyed. If still, the soil where small seeds are sown should be made mellow, particularly on the surface by the addition of sand and light mould. If seeds are sown in rough, lumpy ground, a portion will be buried under the clods, and will never grow; and many that start, not finding a fit soil for their roots, will perish. A few may escape these difficulties and flourish.

What Constitutes a good Pig.

The American Swine and Poultry Journal says: "We would generalize; as what can be said of a good pig of one breed, holds equally good of one from another breed, if we except the size, shape, position of ears, tail, etc., and marks. A good pig is one that has the smallest proportionable amount of offal; whose nose, feet, and tail are shortest, generally speaking, and smallest, consistent with proper locomotion, etc. A good pig is one that has heavy, broad hams, good deep chest, showing a healthy constitution; which has a quiet disposition, yet one which is always ready to get a square meal, and which can digest and assimilate all it eats in the quickest possible space of time without impairing the digestive organs. We do not want a pig which has a small appetite. The profit consists in getting your grain and other food rapidly converted into pork; the quicker the better. Never bother much with a restless pig, for a quiet one, with the same chances in his favor which the restless one has, will soon outstrip him in the race for fat and pork.

Potatoes for Horses.

I once came near losing a very valuable horse from feeding him dry hay and oats with nothing loosening. I have never believed in dosing a horse with medicine, but sometimes it is actually necessary to keep the horse in right condition. Many use powders, but potatoes are better, and safer, and cheaper, if fed judiciously. If those who are not in the habit of feeding potatoes to horses will try them, they will be astonished at the result. I have known a horse changed from a lazy dumpish one, to a quick, active, headstrong animal, in five days, by simply adding two quarts of potatoes to his feed daily. If very much clear corn meal is fed they do not need so many potatoes. Too many potatoes are weakening, and so are too many apples. When I was a lad, I was away from school one winter, and had the care of one horse, one yoke of oxen, and one cow, every one of which I had to card or curry every day. The horse had three pails of water, four quarts of oats, two quarts of corn every day he worked, with what hay he wanted, and a stronger and more active horse, of his inches, I have never yet seen. —Ex.

A Queer way to harden Butter.

An English butter maker of large experience, who is now on a visit to this country for the purpose of looking over our cheese and butter dairies, gives us the following information concerning a method in practice among the best butter makers in England for rendering butter firm and solid during hot weather. Carbonate of soda and alum are used for the purpose, made into powder. For twenty pounds of butter one teaspoonful of powdered alum and soda are mingled together at the time of churning and put into the cream. The effect of this powder is to make the butter come firm and solid, and to give it a clean, sweet flavor. It does not enter into the butter, but its action is upon the cream, and passes off with the buttermilk. The ingredients of the powder should not be mingled together until required to be used, or at the time the cream is in the churn ready for churning.

SEED WHEAT.—To procure the largest ripest grains for seed, some sheaves may be thrown upon the barn floor in a deep bed, and partly thrashed with the flail, or by driving a pair of horses over them, without untying them. They may then be returned to the mow. This may seem like going back in machinery, and returning to bygone fashions, but there some things which can, and perhaps always will, be done best by hand, and this is one of them. Machine thrashed grain is so much cracked or broken, that a large proportion is unfit for seed, and especially when we have to buy seed at double prices, or even more, much is saved by procuring hand thrashed seed. In the way pointed out we get the ripest and largest grain, which makes the best seed.

THE KING-BIRD.—The Bee-Keeper's Magazine contains a bit of testimony from a correspondent that goes far to relieve the King-Bird from an unjust imputation that has long weighed against it. A pair of the birds flying back and forth in the vicinity of bee hives, and apparently making a meal of the industrious insects, were killed on the spot, and the contents of their gizzards carefully inspected. Abundant remains of winged ants were found, but not a trace of honey-bee in either bird. In another case a brood of nestlings of the King-Bird were shot, and their crops and gizzards examined. They were filled with berries, red ants, small beetles, and one large wasp, but not a honey-bee occurred in the whole mass. Yet the parent-birds passed by a hive of bees on every trip in quest of food for their offspring.

A dairyman whose attention was called to the fact of an increase of milk the days he gave his cows salt, experimented until he found that salt, given in small quantities every day is the best. Give salt in the morning just before turning them out, a tablespoonful to each cow, and it will be found to increase the flow of milk considerably.

Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup for the cure of Consumption, Coughs and Colds.

The great virtue of this medicine is that it ripens the matter and throws it out of the system, purifies the blood, and thus effects a cure.

SCHENCK'S SEA WEED TONIC, FOR THE CURE OF DYSPEPSIA, INDIGESTION, &c.

The Tonic produces a healthy action of the stomach creating an appetite, forming chyle, and curing the most obstinate cases of indigestion.

SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS, FOR THE CURE OF LIVER COMPLAINT, &c.

These Pills are alterative, and produce a healthy action of the liver, without the least danger, as they are free from calomel, and yet more efficacious in restoring a healthy action of the liver.

These remedies are a certain cure for Consumption as the Pulmonic Syrup ripens the matter and purifies the blood. The Mandrake Pills act upon the liver, create a healthy bile, and remove all diseases of the liver, often a cause of Consumption. The Sea Weed Tonic gives tone and strength to the stomach, makes a good digestion, and enables the organs to form good blood and thus creates a healthy circulation of healthy blood. The combined action of these medicines, as thus explained, will cure every case of Consumption, if taken in time, and the use of the medicines persevered in.

Dr. Schenck is professionally at his principal office, corner Sixth and Arch Streets, Philadelphia, every Monday, where all letters for advice must be addressed. Nov.

Three Points for Consideration.

During the past five years Vegetine has been steadily working itself into public favor, and those who were at first most incredulous in regard to its merits are now its most ardent friends and supporters. There are three essential causes for those having a horror of patent medicines, changing their opinion and leading their influence toward the advancement of Veg-tine. 1st, It is an honestly prepared medicine from barks, roots and herbs. 2d, It invariably accomplishes all that is claimed for it, without leaving any bad effects on the system. 3d, It presents honest vouchers in testimonials from honest, well known citizens, whose signatures are a sufficient guarantee of their earnestness in the matter. Taking into consideration the vast quantity of medicine brought conspicuously before the public through the flaming notices in the newspaper columns with no proof of merit or genuine vouchers of what it has done, we should be pardoned for manifesting a small degree of pride in presenting the following testimonial from Rev. J. S. Dickerson, the popular and ever genial pastor of the South Baptist Church, Boston:

The Tired Body Sues for Sleep.

BOSTON, March 16, 1874.

H. R. STEVENS, ESQ.:

Dear Sir—It is as much from a sense of duty as of gratitude that I write to say that your Vegetine has been of great help to me when nothing else seemed to avail which I could safely use. Either excessive mental work or unusual care brings upon me a nervous exhaustion that desperately needs sleep but as desperately defies it. Night after night the poor, tired body sues for sleep until the day-dawn is welcomed back, and we begin our work tired out with an almost fruitless chase after rest. Now I have found that a little Vegetine taken just before I retire gives me a sweet and blessed sleep and without any of the evil effects of the usual narcotics. These two things would tend to make brain-workers sleep, 1, a little less work, 2, a little more Vegetine. This prescription has helped me. Yours, &c.,

J. S. DICKERSON,

Valuable Evidence.

The following unsolicited testimonial from Rev. O. T. Walker, D. D., formerly pastor of Bowdoin Square church, and at present settled in Providence, R. I., must be esteemed as reliable evidence. No one should fail to observe that this testimonial is the result of two years' experience with Vegetine in Rev. Mr. Walker's family, who now pronounces it invaluable.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., 164 Transit St.

H. R. STEVENS, Esq.:

I feel bound to express with my signature the high value I place upon your Vegetine. My family have used it for the last two years. In nervous debility it is invaluable, and I recommend it to all who may need an invigorating, renovating tonic.

O. T. WALKER,
Formerly pastor of Bowdoin Sq. Church, Boston.

The Best Evidence.

The following letter from Rev. E. S. Best, pastor of Orn M. E. Church, Natick, Mass., will be read with interest by many physicians. No person can doubt this testimony, and there is no doubt of the curative powers of Vegetine.

NATICK, Mass., Jan. 1, 1874.

H. R. STEVENS:

Dear sir—we have good reason for regarding your Vegetine a medicine of the greatest value. We feel assured that it has been the means of saving our son's life. He is now seventeen years of age; for the last two years he has suffered from necrosis of the leg, caused by scrofulous affection, and was so far reduced that nearly all who saw him thought his recovery impossible. A council of able physicians could give us but the faintest hope of his ever rallying, two of the number declaring that he was beyond the reach of human remedies, that even amputation could not save him. Just then we commenced giving him Vegetine, and from that time to the present he has been continuously improving. He has lately resumed his studies, thrown away crutches and cane, and walks about cheerfully and strong.

Though there is still some discharge where the limb was lanced, we have the fullest confidence that in a little time he will be perfectly cured.

He has taken about three dozen bottles of Vegetine, but lately uses but little, as he declares that he is too well to be taking medicine.

Respectfully yours,
E. S. BEST,
MRS. L. C. F. BEST.

Reliable Evidence.

178 Baltic St., Brooklyn, Nov. 14, 1874.

H. R. STEVENS, Esq.:

Dear sir—From personal benefit received by its use as well as from personal knowledge of those whose cures thereby have seemed almost miraculous, I can most heartily and sincerely recommend Vegetine for the complaints which it is claimed to cure.

JAMES P. LUDLOW,
Late Pastor Calvary Bap. Church, Sacramento, Cal.
